

CONTEMPORARY

LEAH WOOD

BIOGRAPHY

BIOGRAPHY

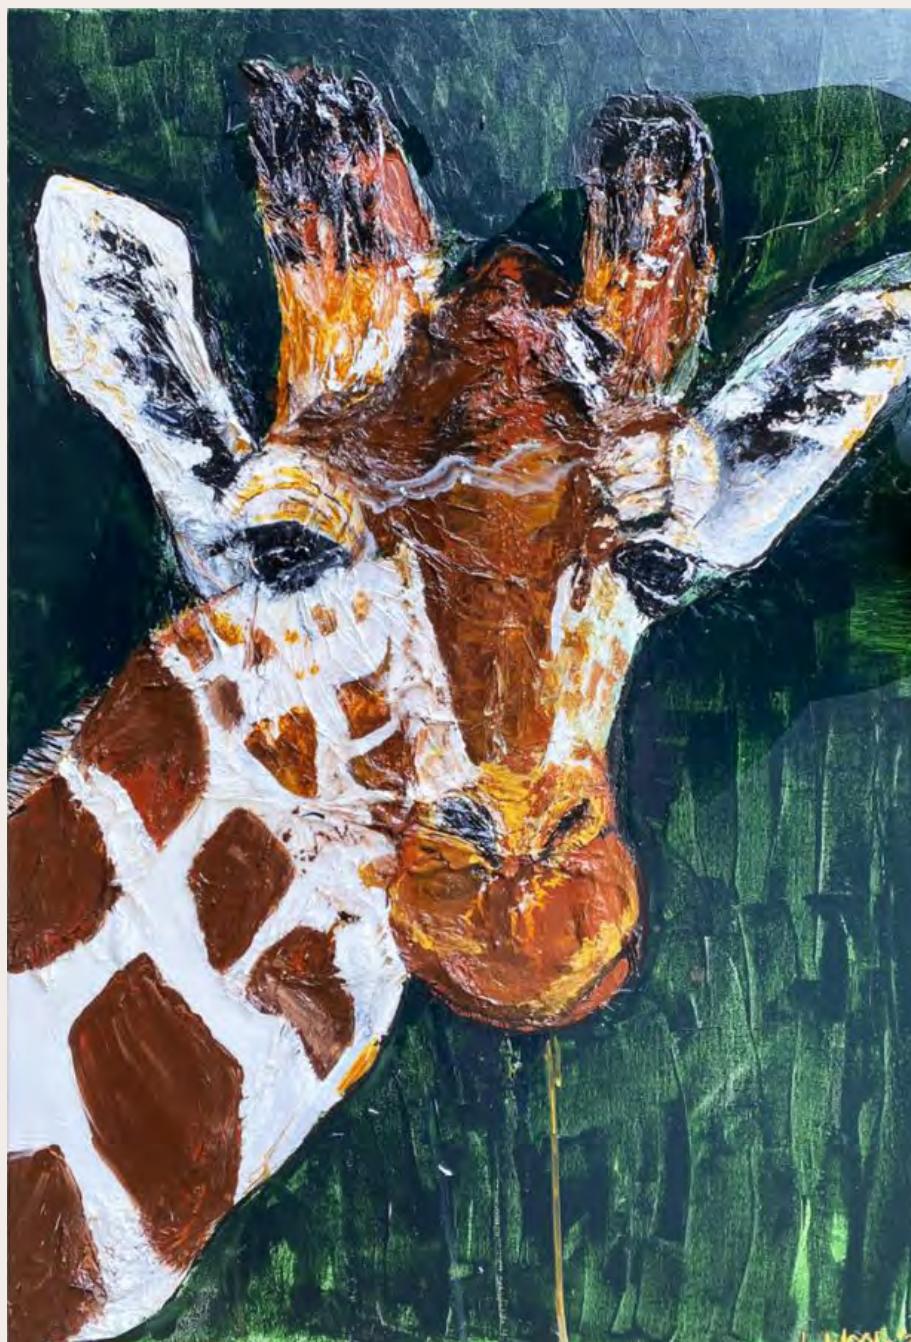

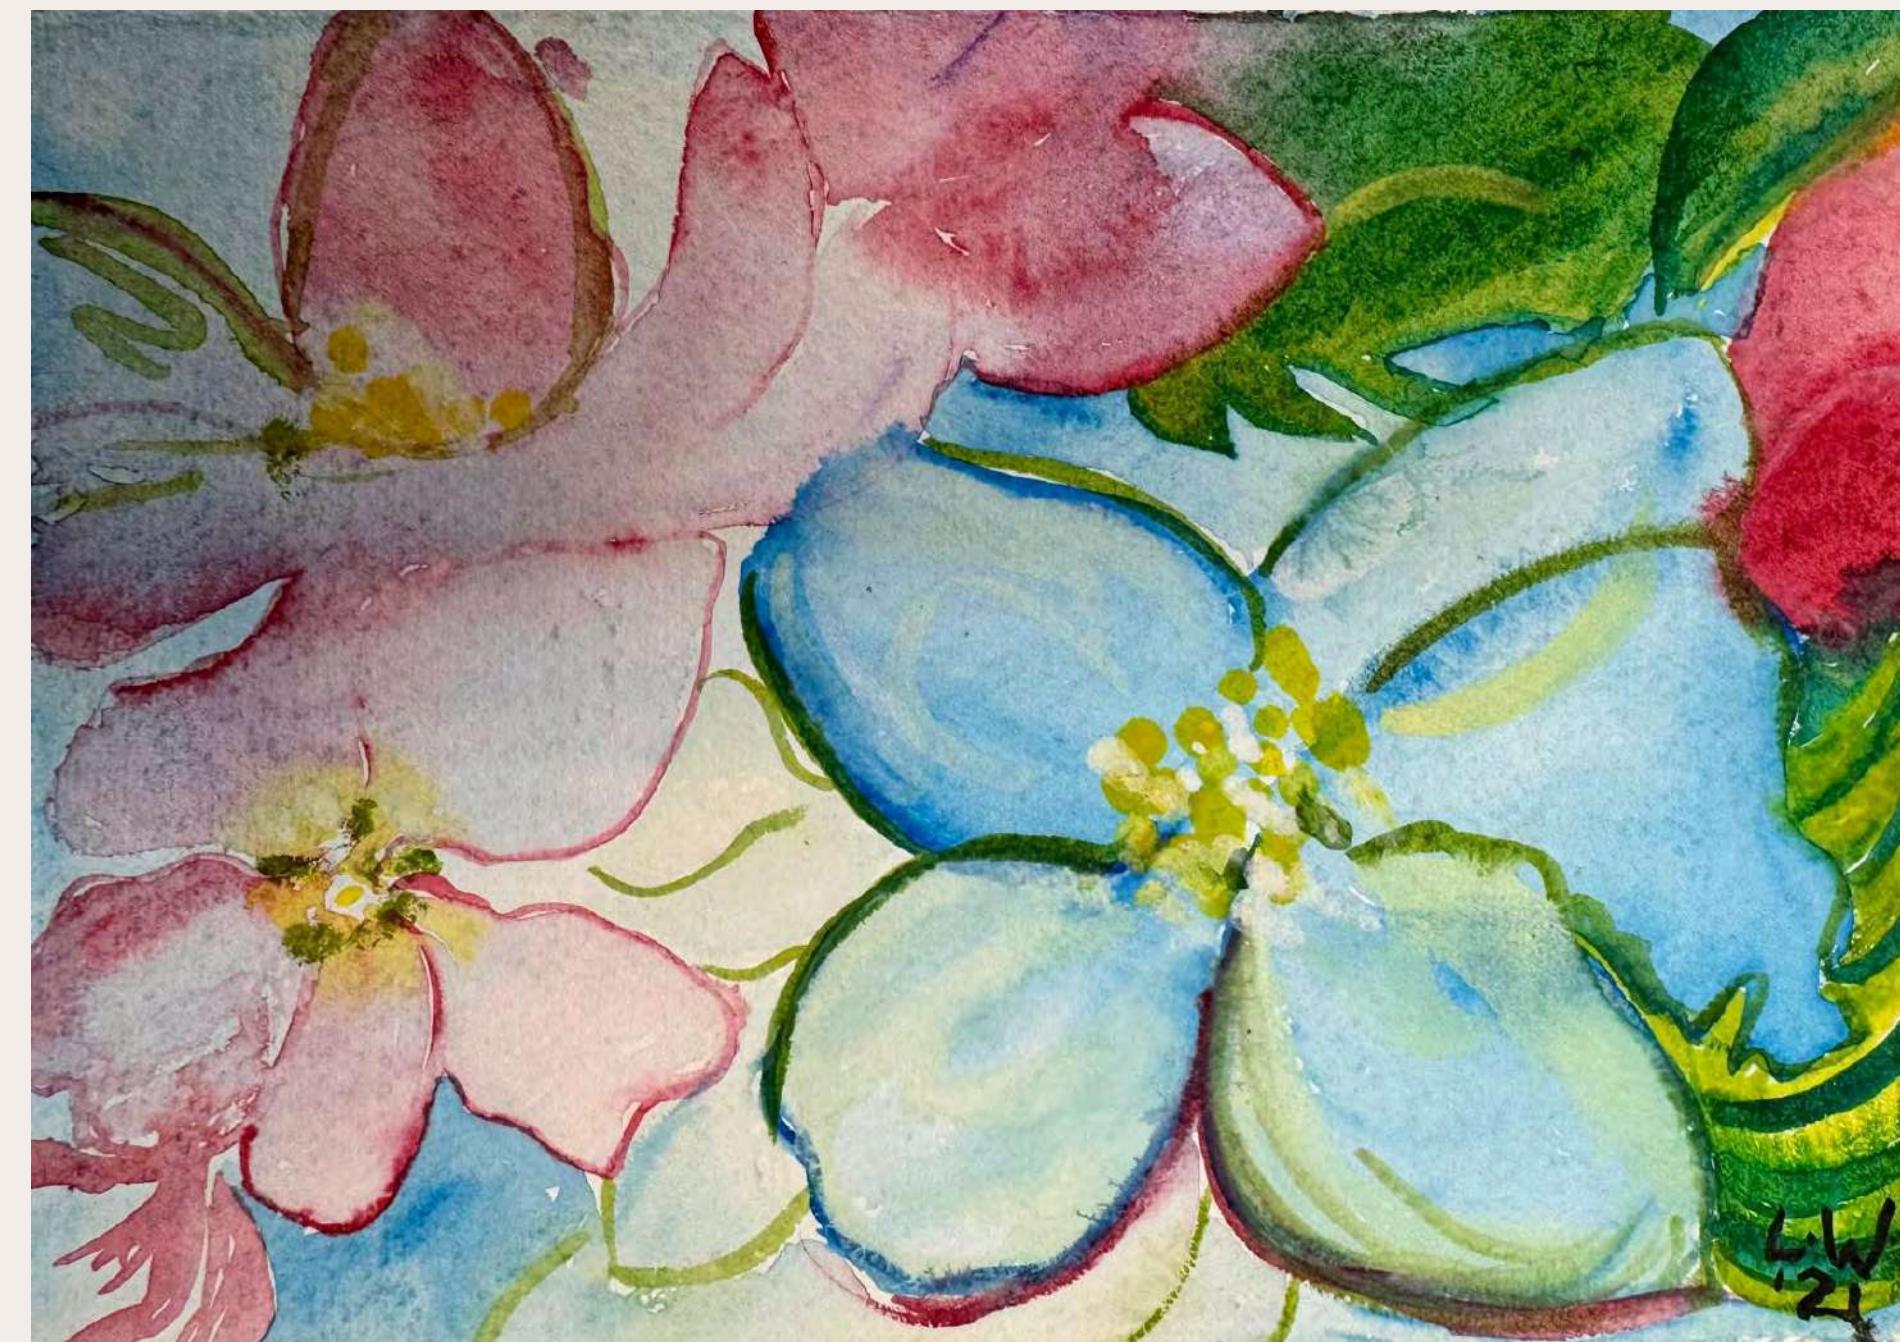

Leah Wood is a British artist and environmental activist renowned for her paintings that capture the beauty of nature and highlight the urgent need to protect endangered species. Her mixed media approach combines traditional oil paints with a unique and textured mix of acrylics, chalks, and cling film. The use of cling film in her works serves as a poignant commentary on the growing threat of single-use plastics and their devastating effects on the environment.

Wood's creative process is a dynamic interplay of construction, deconstruction, and reconstruction, creating intricate layers that give her work a sculptural quality, even on a two-dimensional canvas. This technique reveals the depth of her message and the complexity of the natural world she seeks to protect.

As the daughter of Rolling Stones guitarist and artist Ronnie Wood, Leah has been immersed in the world of music and art from a young age. Her extensive travels and deep connection to nature, alongside the inspiration drawn from raising her two young children, fuel her commitment to environmental preservation.

In 2024 she held a pop-up exhibition at Nyn Esti at the Museum of Contemporary Art in Athens. 2023 saw an exhibition at London's Linley Gallery to critical acclaim and participated in the "One Planet, One Chance" exhibition at the Queen's Jubilee (2022). She was also featured in "The Future Is Female," a mixed exhibition at London's Garrison Chapel.

Previous exhibitions include "Tracing Time" during London's Frieze (2025), West Contemporary's pop-up show "The Devil's Fugue" in Covent Garden (2019) and curating the "NOW" Exhibition in London (2020). In 2018, she received a significant commission from the Mandarin Oriental Hotel in Hyde Park, London, to paint over 100 English butterflies for their Butterfly Terrace. A graduate of Chelsea College of Art and Design in London, Wood has quickly established herself as a sought-after artist with a global following. Her works have been displayed in prestigious galleries worldwide, and she is widely recognized for her contributions to both the art and environmental communities.

COLLABORATIONS

COLLABORATIONS

Leah Wood is involved in impactful collaborations.

Notably, Wood has worked with Sky Diamonds to create a stunning signet ring, with proceeds benefiting Neptune's Pirates, a charity dedicated to ending whaling.

Along with the Mandarin Oriental Hyde Park, where she created the 'Butterfly Terrace'. The design features over 100 lifelike butterflies—a stunning and serene installation situated on a balcony adjacent to the hotel's ballroom.

Summer 2025 saw a collaboration with Woburn Safari Park to mark International Tiger Day. As part of the "Painting With a Purpose" initiative, Leah unveiled a powerful portrait of Minerva, one of the park's resident Amur tigers, to raise awareness and funds for tiger conservation.

She has also partnered with Jodie Kidd and the sustainable fashion brand Manava to print her artwork onto their eco-conscious clothing line.

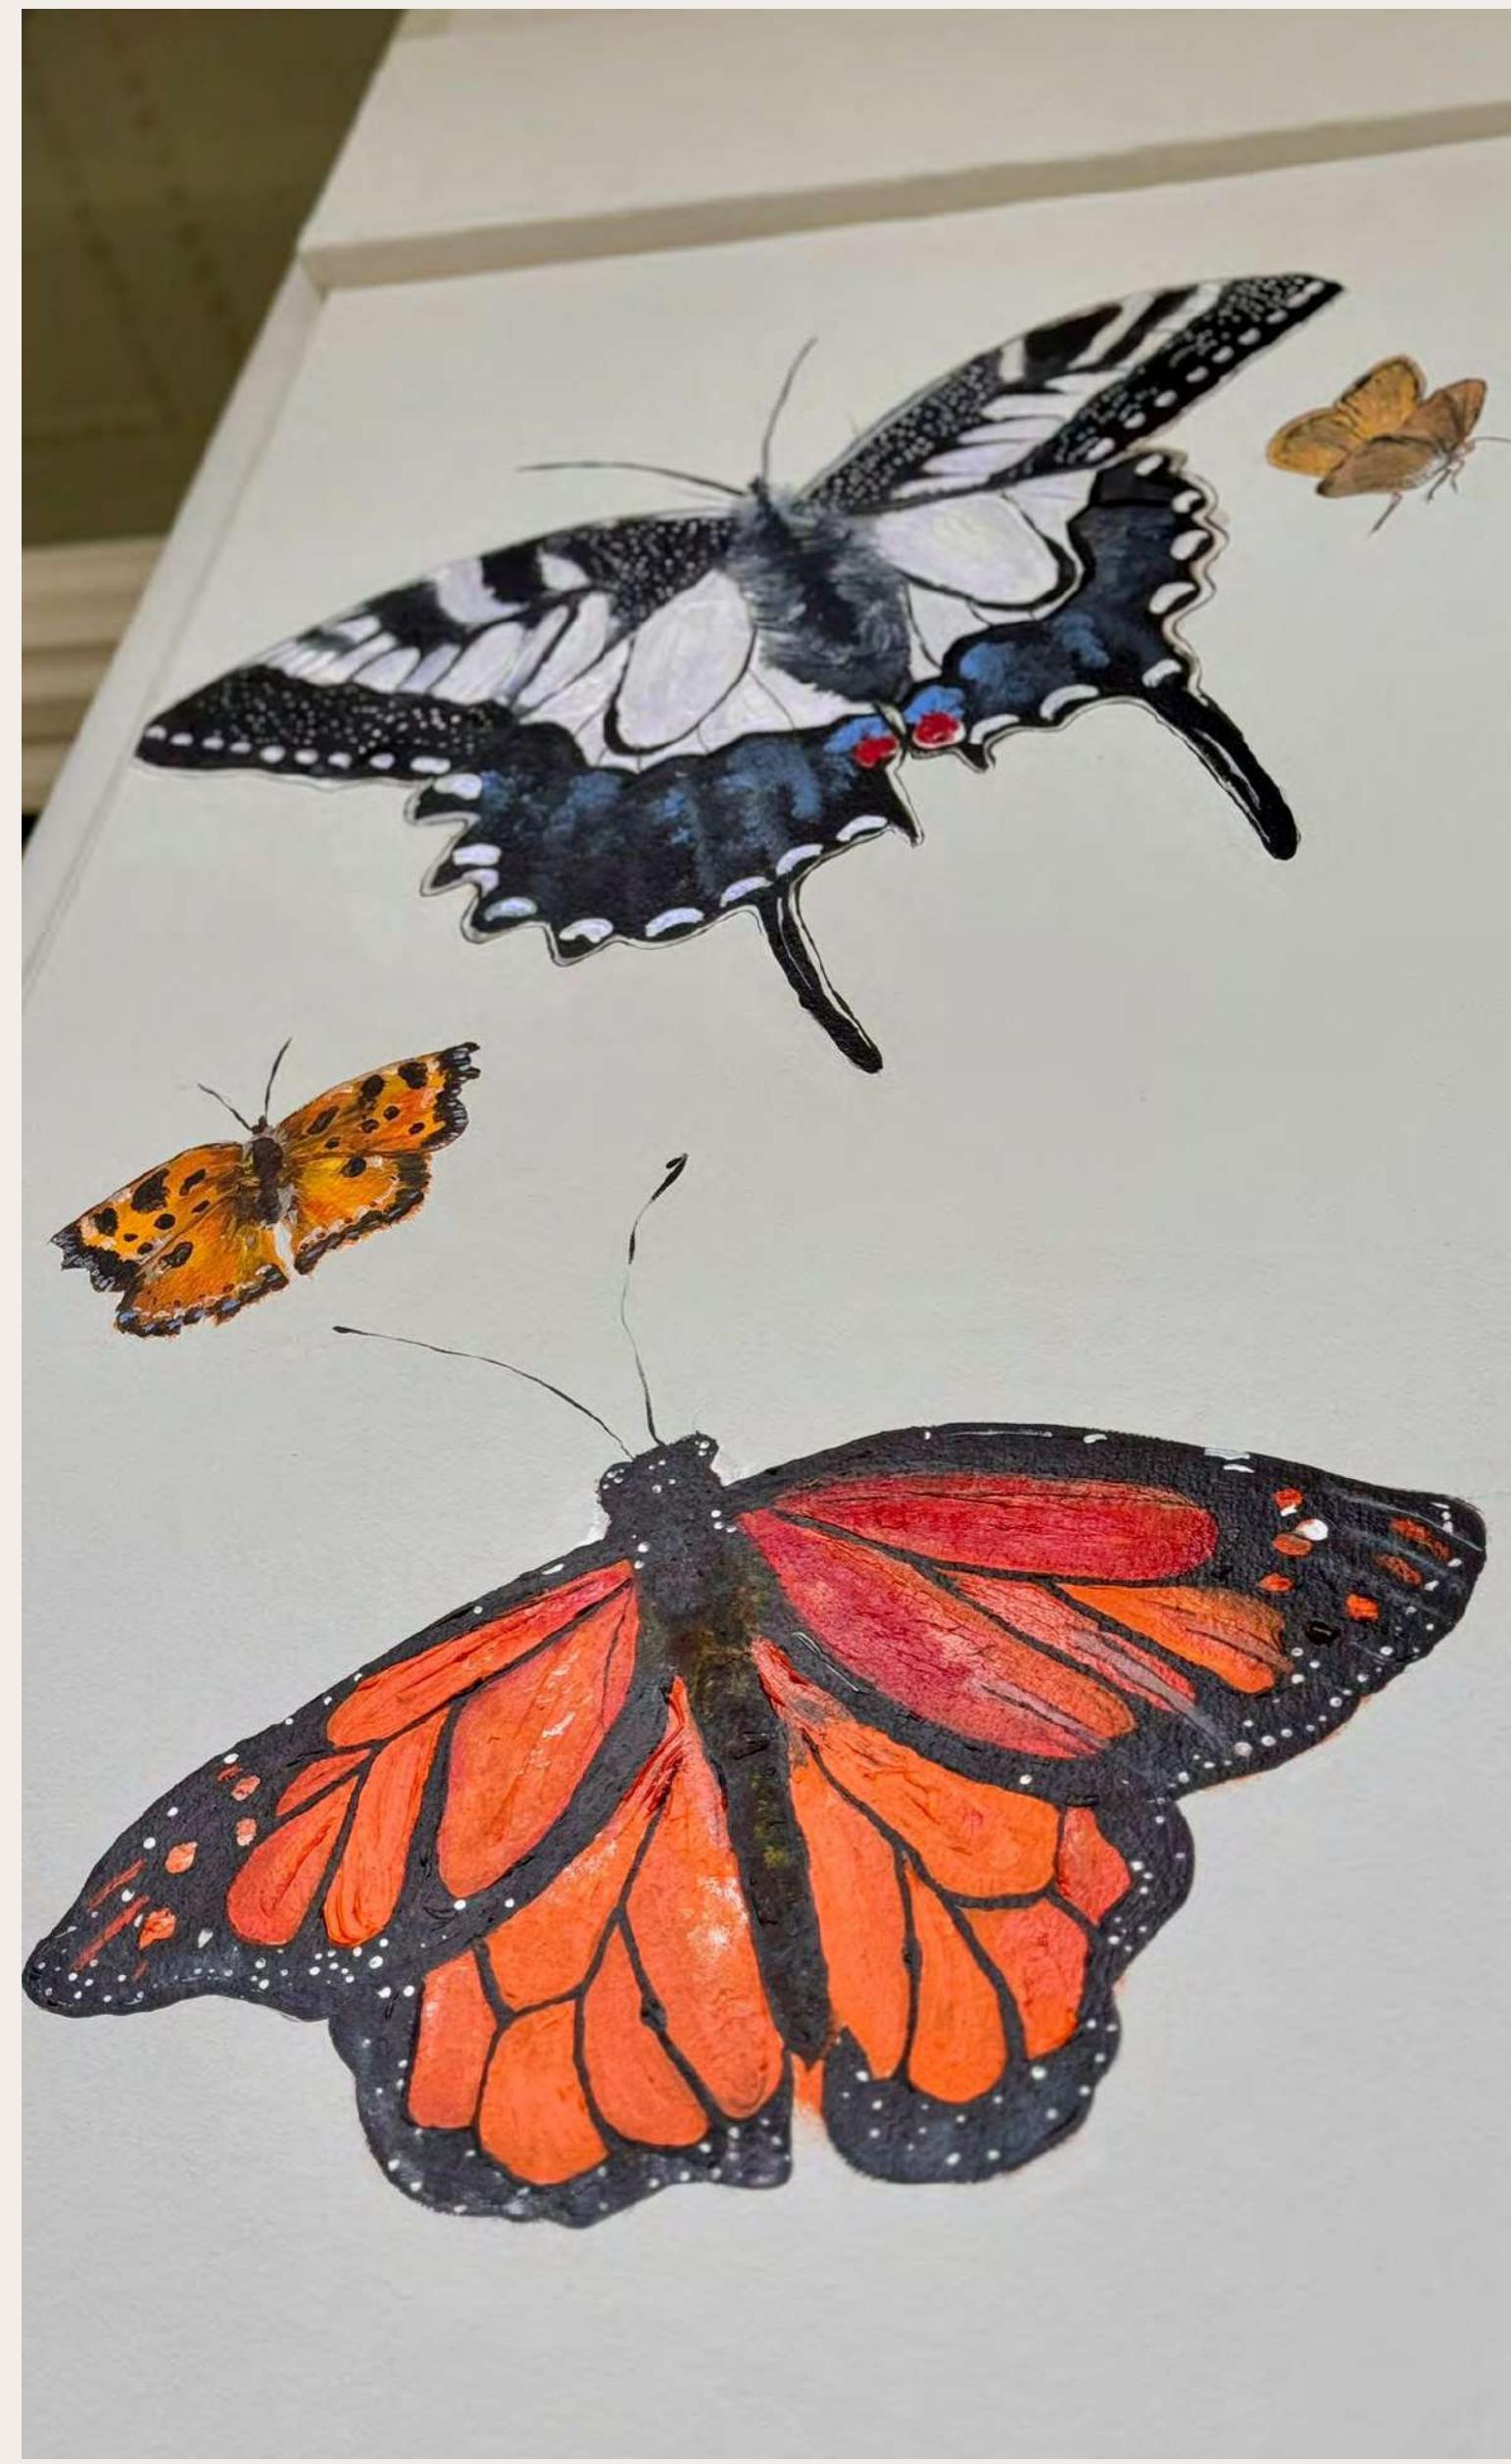

Wood brought her multidisciplinary vision and visual artist to her guest editorial stint at HUNGER for the October 2025 issue.

Leah is currently working towards collaborations with both India Mahon & Project Zero.

SKY DIAMONDS

BUTTERFLY TERRACE, MANDARIN ORIENTAL

ADMIRE

THE DETAIL
The artwork, which features around 120 butterflies, took two and a half months to complete

26 SPRING / SUMMER 2019

THE ARTIST Leah Wood
DESTINATION Great Britain
Leah Wood did before painting butterflies on the Butterfly Terrace Oriental Hyde Park looked into all that might find around says. The daughter Stone, Ronnie Wood himself has art capital - was told to decorate the wall mood took her. "I looked out of this wonderful view what better thing English butterflies.

Leah says the helped her confidence too. "I'm very shy, it was totally nerve project has really I am thrilled with it." Words, Emily Pay.

TO BOOK
To see The Butterflies at Mandarin Oriental

NEWS

Home | InDepth | Israel-Gaza war | War in Ukraine | Climate | UK | World | Business | Politics | Culture

England | Local News | Beds, Herts & Bucks

Endangered tiger immortalised in new portrait

GUEST EDITOR HUNGER MAGAZINE

HUNGER

HUNGER

Leah Wood on her new collection and why we need to reconnect with nature

The multihyphenate might be exhibiting her latest painting collection in the capital, but her heart remains firmly in the countryside.

ART ART + CULTURE INTERVIEW

P R E S S

PRESS

COUNTRY LIFE

VOL CCXXV NO 42, OCTOBER 15, 2025

Ms Leah Wood

Leah is a Nature and landscape painter. She is the daughter of Ronnie Wood of Little Gaddesden, Hertfordshire, and Josephine Wood of Bugbrooke, Northamptonshire, and is married to Jack MacDonald, with whom she has two children.

Photographed at home with Bug in Bugbrooke, Northamptonshire, by Mike Garrard

COUNTRY LIFE

THE TIMES

HELLO MAG

Artists Leah Wood, left, and Jemma Powell helped children from St Lawrence primary school in Feltham, west London, create a mural to brighten a wall at Emily Cafe, a local coffee shop. The project was a collaboration with Timegivers, a charity that connects young people with their community through volunteering

PETER MACDIARMID FOR THE TIMES

FORBES

Forbes

Frieze Week London 2025: Art Lover's Guide To What's On Around Town

Frieze Week highlights include Kerry James Marshall's epic Royal Academy exhibition, Eva Helene Pade's electric London debut, The Museum of Everything's supernatural show and new art fair Echo Soho.

Tracing Time: Jemma Powell & Leah Wood at The Roof Gardens

Artists Jemma Powell and Leah Wood explore the passage of time through abstract and landscape works inspired by nature and urban life. Partnering with charity TimeGivers, the duo channels proceeds into youth art initiatives and a new community mural.

Tracing Time creates a visual dialogue between Powell's abstract, textural cityscapes and Wood's impressionistic landscapes, revealing how both urban and natural settings shape personal and collective identity over time. From elevated viewpoints across London, Powell charts the city's evolving skyline, where glass towers rise beside historic landmarks.

Viewing by appointment at The Roof Gardens, Kensington from 16th to 29th October.

≡ BAZAAR FASHION BEAUTY CULTURE SHOPPING BRIDES ART TRAVEL BAZAAR AT WORK SUBSCRIBE NEWSLETTER

CULTURE > BAZAAR ART

Heading to Frieze London this year? Here are six exhibits you won't want to miss

Our top picks at the biggest event in the contemporary art calendar

BY BROOKE THEIS PUBLISHED: 13 OCTOBER 2025

6

'Tracing Time' at Roof Gardens, Kensington

The artists Leah Wood (left) and Jemma Powell have joined forces to present 'Tracing Time', an exhibition that addresses themes such as time passing and our urban and natural environments. Combining Powell's abstract oil paintings featuring a selection of city landscapes – all seen from the perspective of a rooftop – with Wood's hazily beautiful landscapes featuring flowing water and rolling hills, the show will raise money for the London-based charity TimeGivers.

HARPERS BAZAAR

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION ON ARTWORKS,
COMMISSIONS & COLLABORATIONS
PLEASE CONTACT US ON THE BELOW

Email: info@leahwoodartwork.com

Website: www.hccontemporary.com

Phone: +44 (0) 207 126 8193

Instagram: @hccontempoary @leahwoodartwork

CONTEMPORARY